

The City of Brooklyn is committed to investing in our residents by providing quality programming and services. To this end, the Recreation Center planned to host several Farmers' Markets throughout the summer of 2016.

However, in the planning of this year's market, several challenges arose including the Memphis Avenue construction and the scheduling of the highest quality vendors. Rather than unveiling a subpar Farmers' Market, the decision has been made to cancel the 2016 Farmers' Market and work to ensure the best delivery of the program in 2017 that our residents will enjoy and that is repeatable for years to come.

We continue to work on the planning process to bring a Farmers' Market to Brooklyn that showcases quality, local vendors and activities for families and residents. Stay tuned for additional details, and as always, we welcome your ideas and feedback.
